

Beam me up Scotty. No, AutoWeek hasn't turned into a Trekkie convention, but we're not averse to wearing a scientifically correct jacket to optimize our force fields against raw weather. This jacket has so many pockets that we can't help but free up our hands for a round of applause, including a spot for a cell phone, MP3 player, magazines, a laptop power supply and a Palm Pilot. Business cards, hidden nooks for identification and cellular earplugs are also thought of in this intricate design that creates a whole new take on hands-free technology. $139.99. www.scottevest.com
